RL~ geniwate

RL~ is an episodic microsoap for mobile phone, using machinima techniques (that is, some images are derived from computer games). It follows the adventures of Sarrorn, a young woman in complex circumstances, who experiments with her love life with unfortunate results.

About the artist

geniwate has created many artworks using networked and programmed media, many of which have been published internationally. These include rice, co-winner of the 1999 trACE-Alt-X International Hypertext Competition and concatenation, winner of the 2004 Mayne Award for Multimedia at the Adelaide Festival. Her work has been exhibited at ACMI and the NGA website. geniwate (aka Jenny Weight) lectures in networked and programmed media at the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology.

Mobile Journeys

Mobile Journeys is a national arts initiative dedicated to exploring the creative potential of mobile devices and to fostering the development of Australian mobile culture. Find out more online at www.mobilejourneys.com or through your phone by texting "Journeys" to 0427 232 623 (results will depend on your handset's capability).
